Living with Turner Syndrome

This week so far is going great... if great to you means cold weather and a snow bank in my driveway taller than me :O (I'm five feet tall) I also have a very long day ahead of me tomorrow with a science activity after school, then coming home to eat dinner of course, then off to religion class and from there, volleyball practice. Then, Friday, volleyball again. I enjoy my busy schedule, as long as I have time to relax once in awhile, watch TV and listen to music in my room:)
