

THE PEARLS PROJECT BLOG

Rebecca's Blog Page

PEARLS PROJECT

Welcome to my PEARLS PROJECT Blog February 15th, 2011

21-years-old, Michigan
Living with Arthrogryposis Multiplex Congenita Syndrome

On a much lighter note, thank you Matthew for sending in some questions for me! I have to say, first thing you asked me made me laugh which I needed.

Do you think having a small compact body helps to keep the little kid in you alive?
Haha, I think I can definitely get away with more than the average 21 year old. For example, pretty much anytime we go out to eat I order off of the kids menu even though they always say for 10 or 12 and under. I will always know that there will be chicken strips, the portion size is right for me, and its cheaper than the adult menu. Plus if I get bored I can do the activities. :)

POSITIVE EXPOSURE